

Paul Mohapel

PhD

@ paul.mohapel@shaw.ca

Paul wears many hats: consultant, lecturer, educator, researcher, facilitator. After receiving his doctorate in psychology from the University of Victoria, BC, he worked as a neuroscience researcher for several years at Lund University Hospital in Sweden, before returning to Canada to pursue a master's in leadership and training at Royal Roads University, Victoria.

Today, Paul uses his extensive knowledge of the brain, psychology and leadership to design and facilitate workshops in organizational development, and to lecture at several universities in leadership, business and psychology programs. He consults with organizations on individual and organizational emotional intelligence enhancement, leadership development, talent management and team effectiveness.

For more information on PLI courses, visit joulecma.ca